SHAW CONTRACT CREATES PRODUCTS BASED ON HUMAN CENTRIC DESIGN

At Shaw, we look at sustainability through the lens of responsibility and acknowledge that the most important action that we need to take is the collaboration within a supply chain. Both in the supply chain of how we manufacture products and in the supply chain of our customers' buildings. We see this as an opportunity to deliver smarter impacts that create solutions to global problems like climate change, circular economy, material health, water, and social responsibility. We understand that no one company can solve these issues if they act alone. It will be collaboration with our customers and the choices we make that will create positive impacts to the health of our planet and our population. Cradle to Cradle is the most comprehensive material health assessment. Shaw Contract Cradle to Cradle Certified products have been assessed, and are continually being optimized to ensure they pose no known or suspected threat to humans or the environment. C2C MUST assess a chemical's potential risk across 24 different human and environmental endpoints and is Third-party Certified.
